

Chapter 3: Inventory of Parks, Open Spaces, and Facilities

The Fall City Metropolitan Park District (District) covers approximately 27.50 square miles (17,600 acres) and is comprised of rural and resource lands. Rural Residential Use (ranging from one dwelling unit/4 acres to one dwelling/48 acres) predominates. Other permitted uses include commercial uses and office uses to serve the community. The Rural Area also includes lands designated and zoned for agriculture, forestry, and mineral extraction.

The topography of the District is variable including plateaus, forested landscapes, the Snoqualmie River system, and sloped terrain associated with nearby mountains. The District has one rural commercial center and two different zip codes (98024 and 98053). The District includes the entirety of Fall City (Unincorporated Area), King County Fire District No. 27, and together with surrounding neighborhoods.

The District has designated Plan Areas that are made up of established voting precincts (listed in parenthesis) using the following designations: Central (Fall City and Two Rivers), South (Lake Alice), West (Aldarra, Patterson and Raging River), and East (Powell, Sno-Valley, and Twin Peaks). Please see the map at the end of this chapter.

Regional Trails

Regional Trails serve a large population base and offer a wide variety of landscape features to access forested areas, wetlands, shorelines, camping, competition athletic facilities, and other amenities that may not be available at other sites.

Preston-Snoqualmie Trail

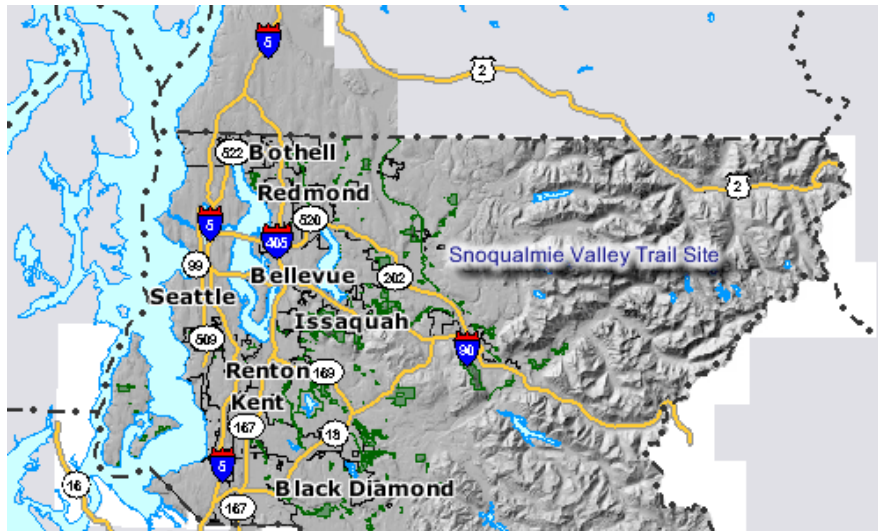

The Preston-Snoqualmie Trail (PST) offers an overlook view of the Snoqualmie Falls at its eastern terminus. The total length of the PST is 6.6 miles, of which approximately 3 miles is within the District. Its surface is paved. It has 1 standard unit portable restroom at its eastern terminus. The PST has 1 access point within the District at its intersection with the Lake Alice Road. The PST is for non-motorized uses only and is primarily used for walking and bicycling. The trail is readily accessible to people in wheelchairs.

Snoqualmie Valley Trail

The Snoqualmie Valley Trail (SVT) offers the opportunity to get out and explore one of the most beautiful agricultural valleys in the region. The trail meanders past working farms as well as preserved open space areas, and connects to the cross-state John Wayne Pioneer Trail in Iron Horse State Park. A point of interest north of the District includes Tolt-MacDonald Park in Carnation. Points of interest south of the District include the Tokul Trestle, and Meadowbrook Farm and Three Forks Natural Area (in North Bend).

The total length of the SVT is 31.15 miles, of which approximately 5 miles is within the District. Its surface is crushed rock and original ballast surfacing. Former railroad trestles have been decked and hand railed from Duvall to Rattle Snake Lake with one on-road detour in the City of Snoqualmie. The SVT has 2 access points within the District, 1 at 39th Place SE near Fall City (Community) Park and 1 at 356th Place SE. The SVT is for non-motorized uses only and is primarily used for walking, bicycling, and horse riding. Due to the crushed rock surface, the trail is not readily accessible to people in wheelchairs.

Fall City Park West

Fall City Park West is located 4.0 miles west of Fall City and may be accessed from the Issaquah-Fall City Road to its south. The 33 acre property is undeveloped forested open space.

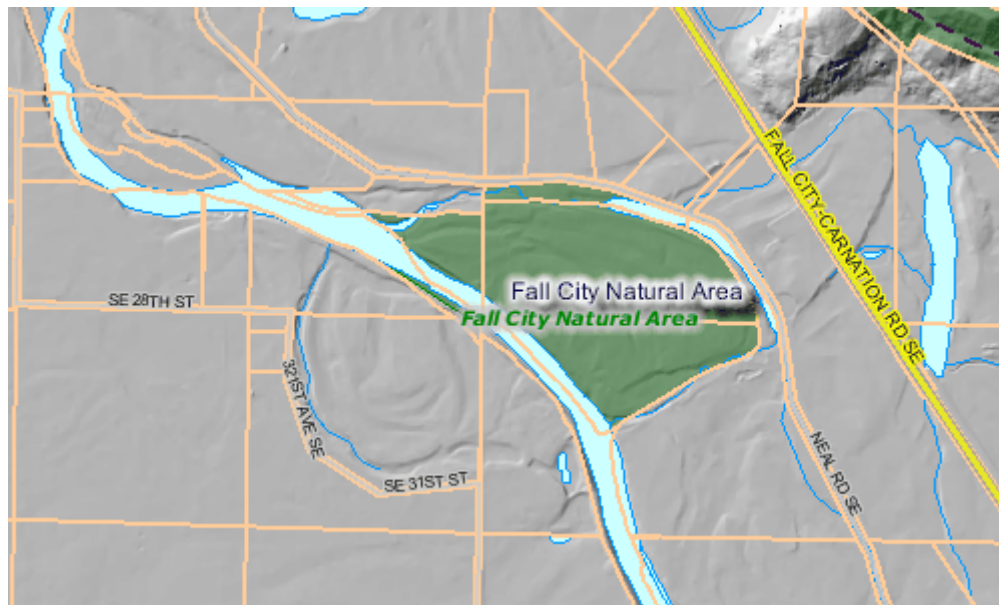

Current public use at Fall City Park West involves a relatively low number of visitors engaged in recreational activities such as walking, nature observation and off-road bicycling. No formal public trails exist on the site, although pedestrians use the primitive access road as a trail.

Fall City Natural Area

Fall City Natural Area is located 1.5 miles north of Fall City and lies between the Snoqualmie River to the west and the 3000 block of Neal Road to the east and north. The 49 acre property lies within the Snoqualmie River's 100-year floodplain and is one of the few substantial blocks of forested riparian habitat in the Snoqualmie Valley. The Fall City Natural Area was purchased to protect the site's remaining high quality salmon habitat, specifically chinook winter rearing and juvenile habitat. The site was purchased between December 2000 and April 2001 with a combination of funding from the Governor's Salmon Recovery Office, a Salmon Recovery Funding Board Grant and King County Shoreline Improvement Funds.

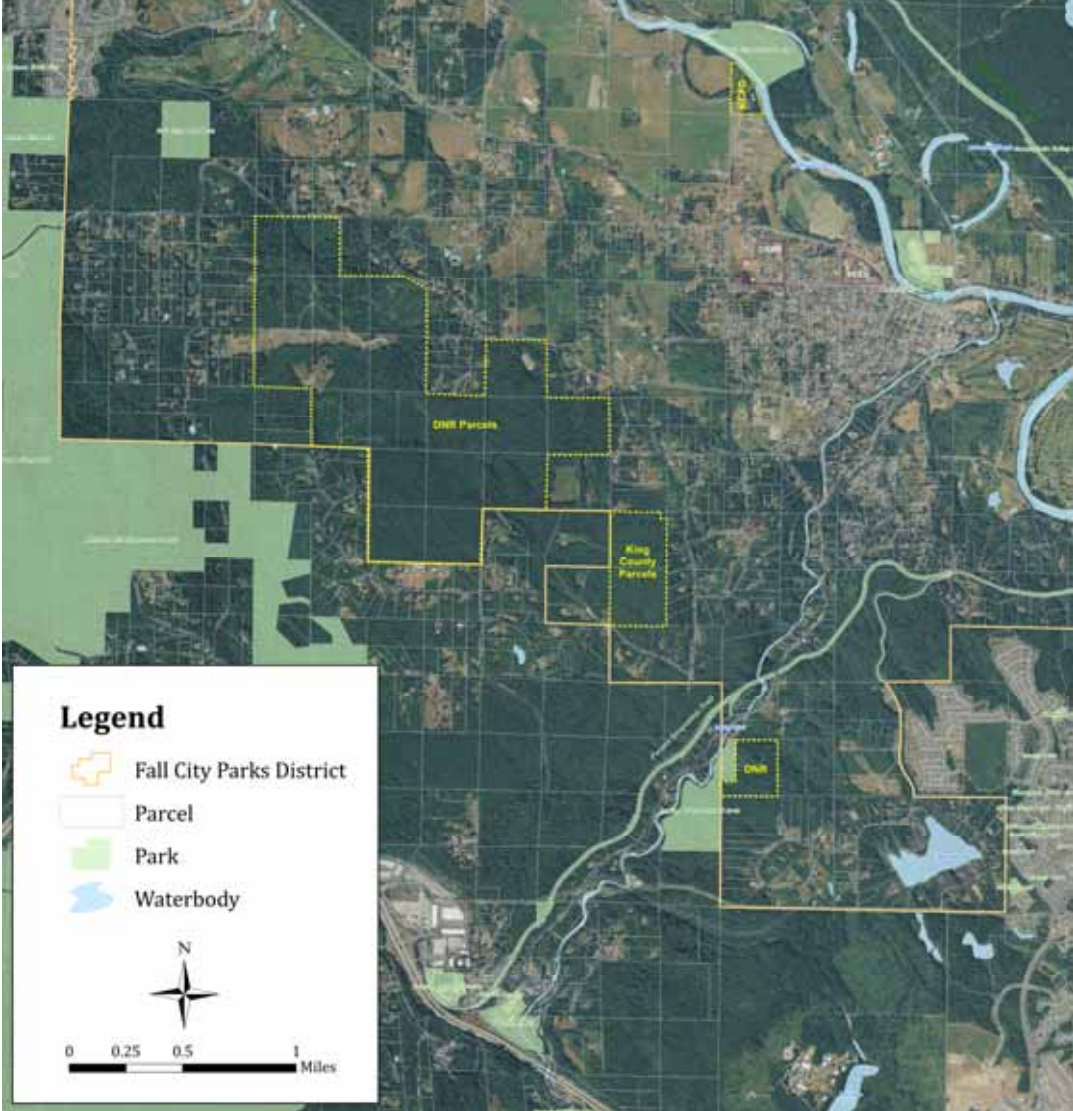

Current public use at Fall City Natural Area involves a relatively low number of visitors engaged in recreational activities such as walking, nature observation and fishing. No formal public trails exist on the site, although pedestrians use the primitive access road as a trail.

Fall City Cemetery
 10 acres of open space on a plateau above the Raging River valley floor, accessed via the SE 47th Street/Lake Alice and Cemetery Roads.

Evergreen Forest Trust (Snoqualmie Tree Farm)

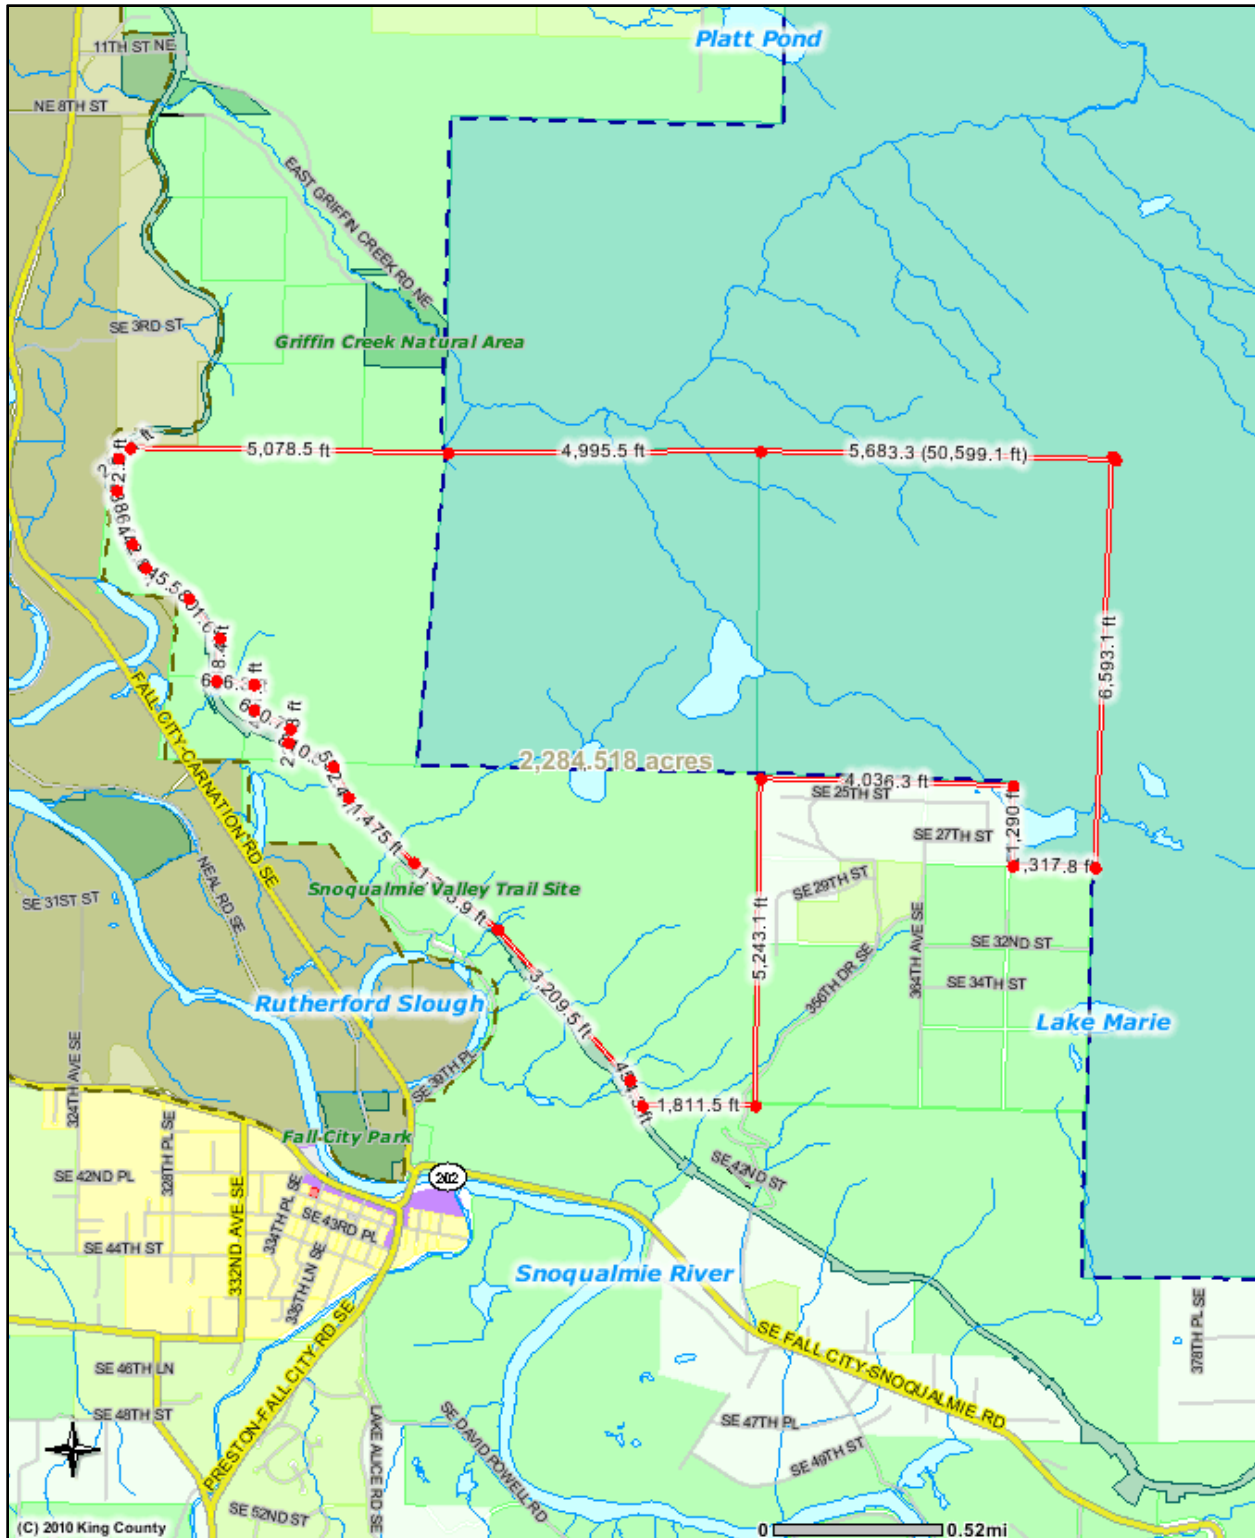

This Snoqualmie Tree Farm is a 90,000 acre working forest, which extends from Fall City and the north side of Mt. Si in the south, to Mt. Index at Hwy 2 nearly 25 miles to the north. That's an area that's nearly twice the size of Seattle. Access points to the Tree Farm near Fall City are barely 45 minutes away from downtown Seattle.

Weyerhaeuser Company once owned and operated the tree farm, improved the gravel roads, set up power and phone lines, and provided amenities such as trails and community picnic areas. In March 2003, a $185 million deal was signed with the Boston-based Hancock Timber Resource Group to control an area of forest long coveted by Northwest conservationists. In September 2004, King County agreed to acquire the development rights of the Snoqualmie Tree Farm from Hancock for $22 million through a deal made by the Cascade Land Conservancy. Hancock will maintain ownership and logging rights to the land, but any development is controlled by the County. The agreement was one of the largest public purchases of development rights in the Pacific Northwest and one of the biggest such contracts in U.S. History. Under the county's current zoning, the forest could have been broken into smaller plots for development.

Hancock Timber allows passive recreational use by the public on the Snoqualmie Tree Farm, and the land has provided an amazing array of recreational opportunities for equestrians, mountain bikers, and casual hikers for many years. Because the southern boundary of the Tree Farm is adjacent to King County Park's Snoqualmie Valley Trail, which runs from North Bend, to the Snoqualmie Falls, past Fall City, and through Carnation and Duvall, outdoor recreation enthusiasts have enjoyed easy access to the land from various access points. Although all the trails are open to mountain bikes, many of them were built by the equestrian community over the years. During summer dry spells, Hancock will occasionally close the land due to fire hazards.

Visitors to the back country trails must remember also that the property is an actively harvested tree farm except in certain reserve zones that protect views, streams, or lakes. One may encounter logging trucks and other vehicles, especially on weekdays, therefore bicyclists, equestrians, and hikers are advised to yield the road whenever you come across a vehicle.

Once inside, the Tree Farm offers hundreds of miles of logging roads for year-round riding, as well as many miles of trails. The terrain is gentle and low enough to remain snow-free through winter months, yet contains many dips and rises that will provide ample work-out for most riders. Vast expanse of the Tree Farm provides ideal habitats for many species of wildlife. Recent sightings have included deer, black bears, cougars, and various birds of prey. It also offers visitors feeling of solitude inside secluded woods, despite the existence of residential developments nearby.

Community Parks

Community Parks are typically classified as larger than 5 acres in size. They serve both a formal and informal use and offer a wide variety of recreational needs including, but not limited to play areas, picnic areas, passive use, ball fields and active use.

This 0.5 acre park is located approximately in the middle of the District along the west bank of the Snoqualmie River primarily outside of the 100-year floodplain. The property has parallel parking and access along the Redmond-Fall City Road (SR 202), 3 picnic tables, an interpretive sign, and a grassed area.

Fall City (Community) Park

This 27.5 acre park is located approximately in the middle of the District along the east bank of the Snoqualmie River within the 100-year floodplain. The property has 1 baseball/softball field (350 foot fence distance) with a grass outfield used for soccer, a horse arena, 2 parking areas (a gravel parking area primarily used for equestrian use and a gravel parking lot for general use), 2 picnic tables, 1 standard unit portable restroom, open space areas, trail access to the Snoqualmie River, and the Fall City Hop Shed built in 1888 which is now designated as a King County Landmark. The equestrian parking area is one of the few sites where horse trailers can park and easily access the 31 mile Snoqualmie Valley Regional Trail, just across the Fall City-Carnation Road (SR 203).

The park is also of historical, archaeological, and cultural significance to the Snoqualmie Tribe. Archaeological sites exist throughout the Snoqualmie Valley, including the area that includes Fall City Community Park, which was designated an archaeological site by the Washington State Department of Archaeology and Historic Preservation.
